In the grand tapestry of the Sierra Nevada, a region famed for gems like Yosemite, Lake Tahoe and Mammoth Lakes, is a lesser-known gem: the enchanting expanse of what's affectionately known as the Lost Sierra. This secluded haven boasts towering peaks and is dotted with pristine, turquoise lakes. The heart of its beauty lies within the federally protected Lakes Basin Recreation Area, an under-the-radar treasure featuring over 50 glacially carved lakes.

It's the essence of mountain luxury, inviting guests to immerse themselves in the natural world, and provides a peaceful sanctuary amid the wilderness. It also serves as the perfect launchpad for adventures, from trekking through forest trails to fishing. The on-site Eureka Peak Brewing Co taproom offers a selection of fine drafts that embody the spirit of the Sierra. Guests are invited to delve into a sensory journey, with brewing craftsmanship taking centre stage, celebrating the bond between the land and the art of beer-making.
